What was the impact of the Roman invasion on Britain?

The Roman Empire

Rome

A Roman Centurion

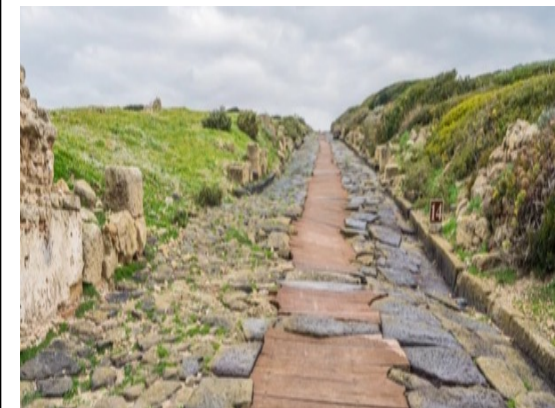

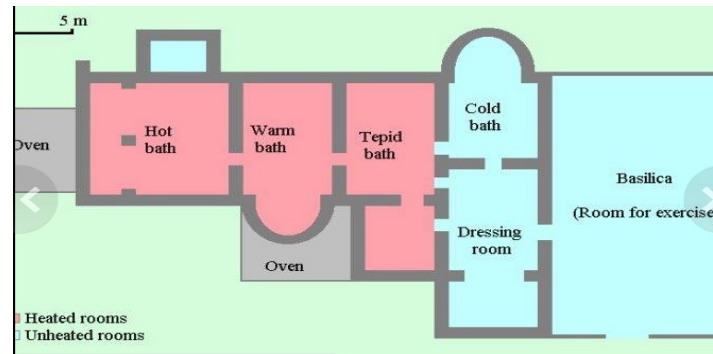

These gladiators are racing chariots in an amphitheatre.

Aqueducts carried fresh water into towns and cities.

Romans built sophisticated bathhouses with underfloor heating systems (a hypercaust).

Romans built roads that were straight which allowed troops and military supplies to move quickly through Britain. The roads were then used for trade and to transport goods.

This is an example of a mosaic that would decorate a floor.

The Romans invented a number system, called Roman Numerals that we still use today. We see them on clocks and watches.
